Buying cryptocurrency with a credit card is a tedious process. First, you have to find an exchange that facilitates buying and selling of cryptocurrency, similar to a stock exchange. Bitcoin, Ethereum, and Dogecoin are bought and sold using crypto exchanges.

What you need to do then is to connect your Ledger Nano, run the Fido U2F app (logo is id) and confirm the action on your device: When it's done, you can simply give a name to your security device. Binance restrictions on the name of the security key are not clear enough but basically you can't use anything except the standard alphabet characters (no spaces, no punctuation, no symbols, etc).

What Crypto Exchanges Can US Citizens Use? - CaptainAltcoin

Cryptocurrency exchanges technically can be of two types: custodial and non-custodial. Custodial exchanges hold their users funds, non-custodial crypto exchanges do not. But how that happens is a complex story with multiple intricacies hidden inside.

Can You Buy Crypto With a Credit Card? The short answer is yes, you can buy cryptocurrency with a credit card. However, this largely depends on your credit card issuer and the cryptocurrency.

Opposed to a custodial exchange that requires control of your funds, a non-custodial exchange allows you to trade without handing over your funds to a third-party and the ability to maintain control over your private keys. If you are the only person with access to your private keys, only you can choose what happens with your funds, and this is one of the reasons non-custodial exchanges can be extremely secure to use.
