A decentralized exchange is a cryptocurrency exchange where you can trade cryptocurrencies from your own wallet without trusting third parties. Decentralized exchanges are powered by smart contracts which allow users to trade cryptocurrencies directly with other users or through liquidity pools. Decentralized exchanges are non-custodial exchanges and based on smart contracts, so there is no need to trust a third party with your funds.

With candlesticks, you can get clues and insights from the price action as well as the general mood of the market for that asset. As time progresses, multiple candlesticks create larger patterns that crypto traders derive signals from to make vital trading decisions. At first, candlesticks may be a little difficult to understand.

Appearance: This pattern is made up of two candlesticks. The first one is bullish (green) while the second is red and engulfs the other. In other words, the second candle's body is bigger than the first one. With gaps between closing and opening prices rarely seen in the crypto, this pattern occurs at the top of an uptrend.

Over 75% of stock shares traded on U.S exchanges originate from automated trading systems orders. Known by a variety of names, including mechanical trading systems, algorithmic trading, system trading and expert advisors (EAs), they all work by enabling day traders to input specific rules for trade entries and exits.

Huobi has always had language in their Terms of Service banning US users, but there were many cases where US users were able to make accounts and perform trades on the platform. However, Huobi isnt just running away with their American clients money. The exchange is providing a grace period for any remaining Americans on the platform.
